Ron,

Thank you (and Cinay) for all your help and support this past year. This is all still sinking in. This morning's interview felt like a tremendous relief, and officer Watts was more courteous and understanding than I ever imagined the gentlemen of the USCIS to be. This really was the proverbial "it"?

Just one follow-up question. After a long nap, I noticed as I was sorting all my papers this evening that I'm still in possession of the certified copy of the divorce decree. Was officer Watts supposed to have kept that, or did he make a copy/keep the photocopy?

Other than that, again, I would like to thank you (and Cinay) for your help, support and counsel. My case was complex and riddled with various occurrences of bad timing. Your expertise really helped me through it all. Thanks to your outstanding legal counsel I can now finally put a chapter of my life behind me, and spend the holidays with my family in Norway - and return.

I would normally say "I'll be back", but don't be offended when I say I hope I'll never need legal advice again :) that being said, if I do run into anyone who does, or if I decide to go down route N400, I have Tasoff & Tasoff on speed dial.

Sincerely,
Thank you

Jens
